Where do you see yourself in five years?

“In today’s competitive job market, employers are looking for something small they can use as an excuse not to hire someone”.

This question is more about getting insight into one’s hopes and aspirations. When employers ask about where you want to be in five years, they want to understand more about your career goals and how this position would fit into your grand plan.

Therefore, when answering, keep in mind what the employer wants to know when they ask you this question. Consider work-related goals, ambitions and desired training.

They also want to know if your expectations align with what the employer can provide, they also want to gauge how long you are likely to stay with the company if hired. When asking this question, the employer does not expect you to know 100% of where you see yourself in the future.

Focus on what your dreams are, where you would like to take your career next, and how you plan to do this. Also, show how you plan to benefit the company. Employers want someone who will add value to the company. It is therefore important to think about how your goals fit within the job you are applying for and the industry.

In today’s competitive job market, employers are looking for something small they can use as an excuse not to hire someone. You could be easily eliminated if you answer this question in a way that shows, it is not your dream job. Employers want to hire someone who is excited about the job they are applying for, someone who sees this job as a great career move and will work hard to do a good job.

Many potential employees have long-term goals of going back to school or starting their own business. These are good goals, but you do not need to share them with your potential employer.

Council Chairman's end of year Message

Eng. Isaac Ngobya
Chairman MUBS
Council

As we come to the end of the year, I would like to extend my gratitude to the Principal Prof. Waswa Balunywa, his Deputy Assoc. Prof. Moses Muhwezi, top Management, Staff, students, Parents/Guardians and other stake holders, especially the hostel owners who house our students, for your contribution towards the success of Makerere University Business School.

Indeed, 2019, has been a year of progress and great individual and collective achievement. We have paid real tribute to these successes in person and at the numerous events we have held with staff and students this year, including the wonderful MUBS 14th graduation earlier this year.

My overwhelming wish at this time is simply to say thank you. Thank you to all those who have continued to put students at the heart of the institution, and who have supported their learning, wellbeing and overall experience here at the Main Campus, and our regional Campuses in Jinja, Mbale, Arua and Mbarara.

Thank you to the academic staff who have worked so hard in their areas of research to make a difference for the better to the world in which we live.

Thank you to the students for exhibiting discipline and shunning strikes. I also thank the Principal, and the council for leading a disciplined institution.

Thank you to the Administrative staff for enabling the School to thrive, from staff who look after our campus and buildings to those who deal with students and other clients. Thank you to the students who joined the School Management in the struggle to fight against drug and sexual abuse among University students.

To the parents and guardians, you have supported us tirelessly, and our students have been able to finish their exams well. I also thank the security organs within the School who have provided safety to our clients and their properties, with Gods' mercy, we hope to go through the festival season peacefully.

I have noted with sadness the death of staff members, and staff who have lost their loved ones. I pray that their souls rest in eternal peace.

I am aware of the challenges affecting the "person to holder" category of staff and the lack of space. We are focusing on these issues. We hope that a final solution will be got soon.

When we return in 2020, we will focus on developing our next strategy. I look forward very much to working with you to ensure the future direction of the School is clear and purposeful, and provides a sustainable platform for us all to contribute to the institution.

Merry Christmas and a happy New Year.

Eng. Isaac Ngobya
Chairman MUBS Council

Use the festive season to reflect on where you want to be

Prof. Waswa Balunywa,
Principal
Makerere University
Business School

The festive season is here again, the season normally includes, Christmas and New Year, because many other people add other events to this season to make merry.

This season, is a family season. It is a time to come together as families and reflect on your progress, successes, and failures. It is time for people to renew friendship with those that they have not seen for some time.

For an organization, it is time for the members of staff and students to find some time to rest and to meet with their families.

As the year ends, it is the time to look back and ask ourselves, what have I achieved this calendar year? It is also time to think ahead and say what will I do the coming year? Of course it is a specific moment in time and indeed 2-3 months later, some people forget what they said they wanted to do.

My request to you both students and staff in the institution is to think

My request to you both students and staff in the institution is to think ahead, What you want to do, where you want to be, where do you want to go? And take that initiative to go there" ahead, What you want to do, where you want to be. Where do you want to go? And take that initiative to go there. As it is said in, "Alice in wonderland", if you don't know where you are going, any road will take you there".

It is time for families both in schools and in our homes to think through the mistakes and errors we have made and seek forgiveness from those who have been affected. I personally wish to say sorry to those who feel I have offended them, but we must move ahead with a common objective. Our common objective is to enable the future of our clients, students and others and indeed ourselves, because we as staff are also clients of the institution, so let us focus on that common goal.

Let us move ahead to make MUBS better, let us use the available problem solving methods to solve our problems and continue to be the leading institution not only in the country but also in the region.

I congratulate all those who will be graduating both students and staff. I wish everybody a Merry Christmas and a lovely happy new year.

Prof. Waswa Balunywa
Principal- MUBS

Use this season to be fruitful to families and societies where you come from

Complied by Priscilla Lamwaka

Prof. Moses Muhwezi
Deputy Principal

Dear Colleagues,

I join the others to congratulate you upon having come to the end of 2019. I do sincerely appreciate whoever has made a contribution to MUBS. I bless the Lord for you.

Many of our colleagues who have registered achievements during the year, I do celebrate with you. My heart goes out to all colleagues who could have faced numerous challenges including loss of dear ones, I extend my sincere sympathies.

One of the original aims of education was to send students

“Each one of us should end a day in the life of someone who is disadvantaged despite the resource constraints we may be facing”

to institutions with a lot of hope that they would later return and contribute to the community and also to be good to the local societies where they come from.

Therefore as most of us return to our communities, we should be mindful that they are these communities that lent us to the cities. We should carry a message of hope and be useful to our families and societies where we come from. Each one of us should end a day in the life of someone who is disadvantaged despite the resource constraints we may be facing.

I wish you a Merry Christmas and pray that the Lord goes ahead of you as you cross into the New Year.

Prof. Moses Muhwezi
Deputy Principal

Reflect on the issue of retirement during this holiday

As we draw to the close of the Year 2019, I want to extend my personal appreciation to each and every member of staff for your valuable contribution to MUBS.

Institutions function through people - thank you for being part of the great MUBS family. As we break for the Christmas holiday, I offer my best wishes and happiness to you and your families. May you come back stronger and in good health so we can achieve a lot more together as a team.

I take this opportunity to implore each and every one of you to reflect on the issue of retirement during this holiday season. Retirement is an inevitable phase of our lives that unfortunately has been heavily discounted by most young working professionals.

Old age poverty is a reality in our society today because many working professionals do not plan for their retirement but are taken by surprise when they have to retire.

“ May you come back stronger and in good health so we can achieve a lot more together as a team”

Cases of people being forced back to working life past the retirement age because they cannot financially afford to live comfortably in retirement are not uncommon. Whether it is because they did not accumulate enough savings for their retirement or depleted their financial resources without saving for retirement, the decline in the quality of life for many after retirement is an ominous development.

With proper planning however, we can all live comfortable lives after retirement. With accumulated savings in the National Social Security Fund (NSSF) most people are adamant to take on other retirement plans on the market. Most people are also not aware of such other retirement plans and products available which they can take advantage of to grow their savings for retirement. MUBS rolled out an in-house staff retirements scheme in 2012 to which staff contribute a minimum of 2% of their monthly earnings. The accumulated savings are paid to a member upon exit from School service or on attainment of mandatory retirement age of 60 years.

I encourage staff to take advantage of the in-house retirement benefits scheme and save more in the coming year to broaden the nest of their savings for retirement. This is one way of ensuring that one has substantial savings to live a comfortable life in retirement especially with the provision that members can voluntarily increase their contributions to the scheme beyond the 2% threshold.

As we look forward to a new year, may we also change our perspective on retirement and start planning now. Remember, it is never too early to start saving for retirement.

To conclude, once again, I thank each and every one of you for your dedicated service to this institution. I have no doubt that you all will continue to put in your hard work. Together, we can achieve the best of standards and make MUBS the most trusted name for those who seek quality education in Business and Management Education in the region. A center of excellence!

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Be God fearing and work for a common goal

As we approach this festive season, i want to congratulate all members of staff for the tremendous work done and for the different contributions towards the success of the University.

Christmas seasons always a season of spending more time with family, showing gratitude, loving, sharing and making people happy, and remembering the birth of the Savior, Jesus Christ.

I appeal to each and everyone to therefore show love, care and share with the less privileged but above all be God fearing and work for a common goal because we are servants and humanities of God.

I wish everyone a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. May the almighty Lord Bless everybody in MUBS.

Use this season to reflect on what you have done for the year

Dr. Timothy Esemu, Dean Faculty of Marketing and Hospitality Management

We have been working so hard for the whole year 2019. It is now the time to rest and spend time with our families and friends. However, in this period we have had many successes as well as some shortcomings.

It is now the moment for us to reflect on what we have been doing for the whole year and use it to form our plans for the year(s) yet to come.

As we draw closer to this festive season, i want to thank all members of management and fellow staff in the department for the work done and use this opportunity to wish you a great and blessed holiday that should bring you fond memories.

This festive season should also offer you moments of happiness and peace as you find time to gather and have meaningful celebration with loved ones.

I wish you all a Merry Christmas and a Prosperous New Year 2020.

Look ahead and think about what the new year may unveil

Dr. Rogers Mwesigwa, Deputy Dean, Faculty of Entrepreneurship and Business Administration

It is the time of year again, the month of all the joys of Christmas. It is a time of God showing his great love for us and period when we celebrate the birth of the Christ child.

However, as we are heading towards the end of 2019, it's good to look ahead and think about what the new year may unveil.

2019 was quite a year for all of us at MUBS. We have worked tremendously and we have been through many developments and achievements. I urge us all to continue working hard to uplift the image of the institution come 2020.

Merry Christmas to all members of Management, Staff and Students. Thank you for your commitment and quality service. May it be peaceful, filled with cheers, warm memories and happiness. May God bless you all and enable us to support one another during the New Year 2020.

Overcoming career disasters

Career success is determined broadly by two factors, the ability to perform a technical task and the behavior of an individual. It is usually the behavior that leads to career failure"

Life after university is normally looked upon with anticipation. This includes the living happily thereafter wish. It is a time to earn and realize your dream. For those who find jobs, the commencement is good. There is excitement of work and an income with prospects of a good family. For those who do not find jobs, they walk the streets for sometime, some do finally get the jobs and some do not. The job secured may be that fits into one's career. For many others the job may not be for those who find jobs that fit in their career, they wonder how does it workout for them? What drives success? Well the individual may feel that they have a good job and they are able to achieve their life goal.

In the previous article, we looked at some of the recommendations made by Prof. Waswa Balunywa on how to live a successful career. The expectation is that one finds a job, works hard, progresses on the job to higher levels and possibly making it to the near top of an organization. The hard work in the workplace is however not all that is required to have career success. Abraham Maslow told us that after satisfying basic needs, one goes for safety needs, thereafter belongingness needs when those are satisfied, people go for esteem and self actualization. While Maslow's recommendations are not cast in stone, they are good indicators of what people follow to satisfy their needs. As an individual progresses through their career, he wants to own some property, get married and have children.

He wants to have good friends and becomes accepted as a responsible person in society. This is ideal but what actually happens? One or few undesirable habits may cause career disasters. This may be alcoholism, use of drugs, spending more than what one earns, domestic issues, personal conduct among other issues may cause career dysfunctional. Taking a few of those may explain why a career may fail. An individual may for instance take a lot of alcohol or something sparked off by other causes. These maybe challenges at home, lack of money to spend due financial indiscipline or debts incurred for one reason or the other.

An Individual may take to drinking and this may start affecting his work. It can result into reaching work late, poor performance and rebuke from the bosses about the habit. The other habit is borrowing money from colleagues including junior ones at work among other issues. There is a cause and effect among all these factors. While alcoholism may come from simply over indulgence, it may result into other career breakers. But it is also true that it can be as a result of other career breakers. For instance pressures from marriage may take the person to drinking. This may lead to other challenges at work and may lower one's productive capacity and hence interfere with ones career. Huge ego may also cause career failure. An individual may feel that he is superior to others he or she works with and in the process unleash hatred.

This hatred may result into low productivity and interfere with ones career. Career breakers are numerous and they are inter related. Career success is determined broadly by two factors, the ability to perform a technical task and the behavior of an individual. It is usually the behavior that leads to career failure. It is in very rare cases that people do not know what to do but it is their conduct that affects career success. Alcoholism, drug abuse, huge egos and many others are behavioral aspects. If you want to succeed, watch your behavior.

Feedback on the SKIDEP Programme

Nine years back the School started the Skills Development program, (SKIDEP) targeting students in their second and third years of study. The program is intended to equip the students with soft skills to help them to transit from university into the world of employment. The program is coordinated by MUBS Career and Skills Development Center and it trains students to develop work skills that can make them competitive. We caught up with some students who have attended the program and this is what they said.

My name is Ahimbisibwe June Mercy a third year student of Human Resource Management. Indeed I have benefited a lot from the Skills Development program, I have learnt how to manage my finances and the importance of saving, Home management and, dating, these are things we take for granted yet they are key in one's career. I can now ably market and brand myself using my CV. The personal experiences from the facilitators was a turning point in my life. I will never give up despite the challenges. I also attended the Barclays bank ready to work training program and obtain like money skills, entrepreneurship skills, Job searching skills and people skills. I attended the employee- employer Expo 2019 and was connected to National Water and Sewerage Corporation (NWSC). Therefore I urge all MUBS students to embrace the SKIDEP trainings because there is a lot to learn as well as real life experiences from the trainers.

I got interested in the SKIDEP training programme after it was announced in my class by the minister for information and the course leader. From the Leadership training, I realized that everybody has a calling or purpose in life. Leaders like Nelson Mandela, Mother Thereza and Mahatma Gandhi, had a purpose in life, they lived it and they were able to succeed. So it is important that as we pursue our careers, we need to recognize our purpose in life, short of that, we are bound to fail. Financial literacy was another exciting area, emphasis was put on how to use finances and determine the best alternative for investing. Finally we concluded with designing doormats and happy that I can start earning money by making doormats. These are things that aren't taught in class yet they are very important in life.

Yar Josephine
Diploma in Business Administration

Through SKIDEP I learnt more things that are and must be applicable in life, for example self-confidence, servant leadership which calls for finding solutions to people's problems with all your passion and diligence. The doormat making session was a turning point for me. Just using a riddle and threads I can earn lots of money!! I learnt how to be firm when giving a speech, to identify my weakness and strength but most important, turning my weaknesses into strength. At least now I have personal goals to pursue and a dream to achieve in life. I gained confidence and I feel am able to lead others without fear and also to advice fellow students. I have not remained the same, the training has impacted on me positively. I am really grateful to the School Management for such a unique program.

Okalang Edwin
Diploma in Finance

I got interested in SKIDEP after realizing I was short of skills that are key in the world of employment. SKIDEP opened my mind to things we take lightly, for example, even if one has a first-class degree and a relevant programme for the career they want, you will most likely be competing against others who have the same or similar academic qualifications. Therefore, it's your employability, the unique mix of skills, abilities and personal qualities that will make you stand out from the crowd.

SKIDEP has taught me to stand out

I attended quite a number of sessions or training areas which included job searching skills, Dating and home management, Servant leadership, ICT week, Small scale manufacturing among others. During the small scale manufacturing, we were taught to make door mats using tapestry, threads and crochkniddles. This was the most impactful area because i can now make doormats and earn a living. From the ICT Week I got basics for application development and hardware cleaning. This session was impactful because am pursuing an ICT course and this will help me in pursuing my career. The other training area was home

The Programme aims at equipping students with both practical and non-practical skills that would help us in the outside world. I attended various sessions that include Dating and Home management, small scale management, ICT week and Job searching skills. The Dating and Home Management session the difference between dating and being in a relationship was clearly pointed out. ICT week we were introduced to various software applications that could help in the day to day life. Job searching skills, basically focused on CV writing and tall wherever i go. I also appreciated the need of developing technology expertise and how these build the future skills required to succeed in education and beyond.

I also learnt the importance of being creative, this was through the small scale manufacturing training where I learnt the skills of making doormats. I commend the School for having set up such a motivational and inspiring program that has impacted on my life.

management and dating I learnt that a home is more than a house but what you do inside. I also got to know that before marriage, one has to go through a process of dating where you get to know about your partner well. The other session was job searching skills, where being confident during job interviews was emphasized. I also learnt how to behave and answer interview questions. The training about servant leadership, being a leader one should serve others and not to be served.. After all the sessions I attended I am able to start up a small business. I would like to thank the Career and Skills Development Centre for the Skilling program.

preparing for interviews process. We were advised to be prepared as opportunity could arise anytime. Confidence was emphasized as key in all we were going to do. The Small scale management was a practical session. The most impactful session for me was the dating and home management, because these the youth make a lot of mistakes because they lack guidance in this area. I have also learnt to be patient as everything takes time. I thank the School for this opportunity.

Drugs in Schools

MUBS launched the campaign to stop drugs among university students in March 2019

A few months ago I had a relative who lost a job because of drugs. Effort was made to help the lad recover from the addiction but there was no success. From that time, I picked interest in the subject. Been asking around to determine (casually) extent of the problem and what others are doing about it - perhaps I could find a solution for my relative.

My results are shocking! Smoking of opium and other illicit drugs is extremely rampant among young people and these are tomorrow's leaders.

The practice begins in secondary schools. The reasons are many. In part it is because of the extreme pressure that children are exerted to, for example waking up as early as 4:00am and returning to bed as late as 11:00pm, eventually sleeping past midnight!. It begins with a few people trying the "weed" to keep alert and vibrant all day. Then they share with the friends and the network grows. Eventually, suppliers emerge and it is big business!

It is also evident that the numbers in schools are barely manageable from a sociological point of view. Recently I had a meeting with matrons and patrons from over 60 schools. One matron (or patron) will be in charge of over 400 teenagers, expected to impart morals, counseling and playing the grooming role that a mother would play.

If just three kids can give a mother headache at home, what about 400 teenagers vs one underpaid, stressed and despised matron? So, children end up learning all sorts of things, including weed. And the consumption increases as they grow. When they eventually make it to university, consumption simply increases. There's a lot of freedom and supply chains are well developed. My casual inquiry revealed that suppliers deliver anywhere, on campus, in hostels and everywhere. Do you think that the consumption stops here? The answer is no. Those who never make it to campus go with the weed to communities, in taxis, boda bodas, brick making, markets, politics, and everywhere. After campus, definitely they go to work places. It appears that this undercover industry is barely regulated, from production to distribution through to consumption. Now why some people do unthinkable things such as...

In the end, I am yet to find a solution for my relative. It seems I am the only one who was never aware! But if you are a parent, planning to leave your child to a matron, living with 300 others, be ready to deal with addiction at some stage in the child's life! All of the above is based on my casual inquiry and I have no claim over its reliability. I could be entirely inaccurate. What's your view? Let's share!
